Friends mourn pair struck at crosswalk

Investigation. Fatally injured pedestrians

Trail against the signal, police say

Friends turned to each other for comfort Sunday after learning a second Calgary resident had died of injuries suffered in a weekend collision on Macleod Trail.

According to police, a man and woman were crossing the busy thoroughfare at 90th Avenue S.E. around 1 a.m. when they were struck by a north-bound Volkswagen Jetta.

"The pedestrians were at a crosswalk and it appears they were crossing against the walk light," said duty Insp. Craig Skelton.

The woman, identified by friends as 23-year-old Edyta Marzena, died Saturday.

Marzena had moved to Calgary in recent years to pursue a career in dentistry. She had previously lived in Toronto, and friends there struggled to cope with the news.

"Honestly, you would never see her without a smile on her face," said Joanna Grodecki, who worked with Marzena in the Scouts program in Ontario. "She was such a loving and warm person. If you were sad, she was able to make you happy in an instant."

Close friends and family of the male victim, identified by multiple acquaintances as 24-year-old Chris Turner, could not be reached Sunday; however, Karlee Tario, who had only met the Calgary resident the night before, said some of his friends witnessed the collision.

"I have no words to describe it," Tario said. "It's just such a tragic event."

Skelton said speed is still being investigated as a possible factor in the collision, but it's unclear if charges will be laid.

Two-alarm blaze

Humans, animals escape injury in house fire

Three people and four pets were safely evacuated from a burning home in Calgary's northeast on Saturday evening, the fire department says.

The blaze broke out at about 5 p.m. and the firefighters who arrived first at the scene reported "heavy smoke" and flames emanating from three sides of the two-storey building in the 400 block of 8th Street N.E.

The fire captain on duty called a second alarm as a precaution.

There were no injuries, and the cause of the fire is under investigation.

Three-vehicle collision

Police express anger at alleged impaired driver

Calgary police were quick to issue harsh words on Sunday after laying impaired-driving charges in the wake of a rollover in the city's southeast.

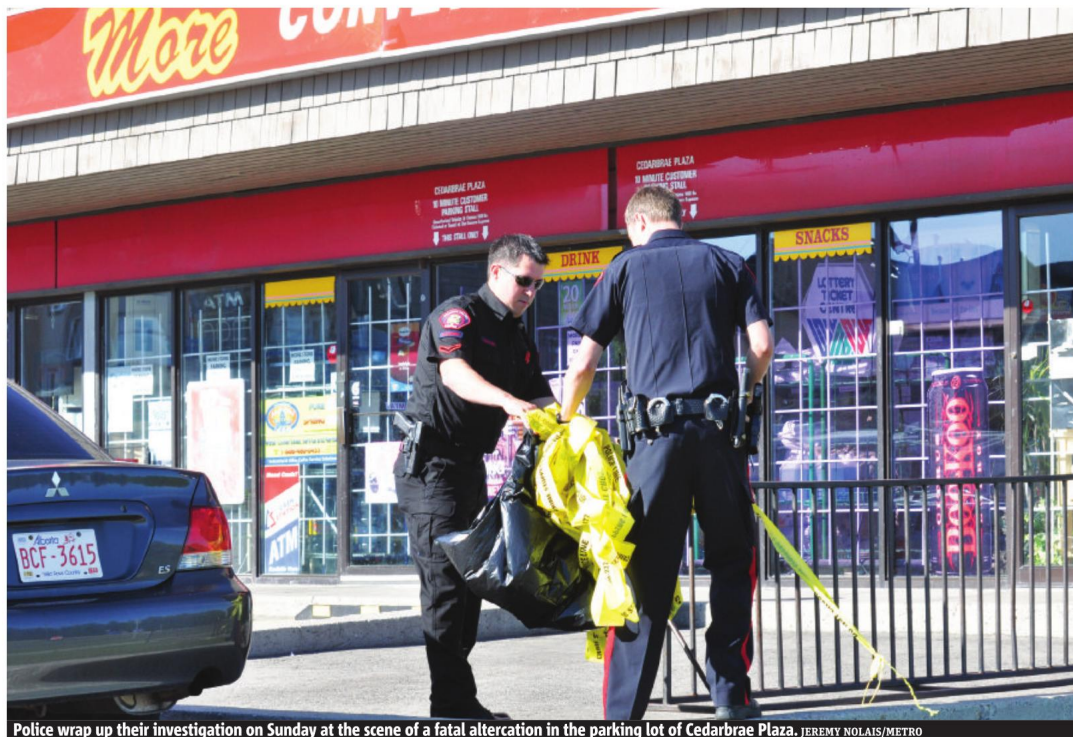

Investigators say a Jeep sped through the intersection at Braeside Drive and 24th Street S.W., striking two cars.

Two passengers in the Jeep were ejected and rushed to hospital with serious injuries.

Police laid a number of charges related to impaired driving against the operator of the Jeep.

"I cannot understand, personally, why people would continue to try to cheat death.... It's just not worth it," said police Insp. Craig Skelton.

Police cordoned off a south-east Calgary parking lot on Sunday morning, after a man was critically injured there and later died in hospital.

A spokesperson for the emergency-responders team said a man in his 50s was rushed from the area in front of Cedarbrae Plaza at 11237 30th St. S.W. Investigators on Sunday combed the area in front of Swigs Pub and Grill, located in the strip mall, for clues.

Harry Viridi, who was working at a liquor store a few doors down, said the pub was the only place still open at that hour. He closed at about 1 a.m. and said that, other than a good crowd at Swigs, likely because of a charity golf tournament hosted by the bar that day, nothing seemed out of the ordinary.

"It's usually very quiet over there. I have never seen any problems," said Viridi, who has worked in the area for four to five months.

Police Insp. Craig Skelton said officers responded to reports of an altercation at about 3 a.m. but much was left to be determined about what caused the victim's fatal injuries.

"They (investigators) will be looking into if there is any connection between any of the businesses in that area and the victim and, ultimately, anyone who may be responsible for this event," Skelton said.

Dragon Boat Festival attracts thousands from all walks of life

Premier Alison Redford and 13-year-old cancer survivor Joel Zukowski were two of thousands of people who crammed into North Glenmore Park on Sunday for the final day of the 2012 Calgary Dragon Boat Race and Festival.

Zukowski, who was diagnosed with a brain tumour two years ago but is now cancer-free, took part in a charity race to raise money for the Kids Cancer Care Foundation of Alberta.

"I had the honour of drumming," he said after stepping out from the bow of his boat. "It was a lot of fun. My feet got a bit wet, but really I didn't mind."

Redford signalled the official start of the charity race and spoke afterwards about how experiences like cancer diagnoses and events like the Dragon Boat Festival can connect people who come from different walks of life.

"When we can come together and think about how we care about people and celebrate the connections that we have as families and Albertans, I think that's the most important thing," she said.

This is the third annual festival put on by the Calgary Dragon Boat Society and the largest one to date.

Joe Connelly, a director of the society, estimated that 2,500 people attended each day of the two-day event.

City appears willing to stick with Shaw despite major outage

Emergency crews are seen at the downtown Shaw Court building immediately after an explosion last month that caused widespread communications issues. METRO FILE

It appears the City of Calgary will remain a committed Shaw customer despite an explosion last month that created widespread communications issues and some harsh words from Mayor Naheed Nenshi.

Maureen Shipton, manager of strategic business technology services for the city, said she was not aware of any talks about transferring to another telecommunications provider in the wake of the Shaw explosion and subsequent fire that set off sprinklers on every floor of the company's downtown headquarters.

For hours, approximately 20,000 Shaw customers in the downtown core were unable to contact 911. Other city services, such as 311, also experienced temporary outages.

But Shipton said the city will continue to review its contract with the telecommunications giant but gave no indication of a provider switch.

"For any of our service providers, we do have service-level agreements, we do have commitments in those service-level agreements of the services to provide and penalties and that type of thing," Shipton said.

AHS felt impact of outage

Alberta Health Services also faced numerous challenges following the Shaw explosion and outage.

- Internal servers were down for days, and a number of elective surgeries were rescheduled.

- In a statement provided to Metro, the organization says it is "still analyzing the events surrounding the Shaw outage and are reviewing options as part of that process."

In the days following the Shaw explosion, Mayor Nenshi told Metro that he would be asking tough questions of the telecommunications giant, adding, "We have got very competitive markets out there, and I think that the city, as a large customer, is entitled to certainly receive the quality of service we're paying for."

The mayor was away on vacation and could not be reached for an update on the situation.

But Ward 8 Ald. John Mar, who's had many constituents affected by the 911 issues, said he thinks further exploration of backup communications plans may be warranted.

"In the event of another outage, is there some sort of reciprocity agreement that we could have with another service provider, like Telus, to immediately pick up the slack?" Mar questioned. "Is that possible? I don't know." JEREMY NOLAIS/METRO

Calgary Centre. Ex-editor chosen as Conservative candidate in vacant riding

The federal Conservatives have a candidate in the vacant riding of Calgary Centre: former newspaper editor Joan Crockatt.

She beat out five others vying for the job in a hotly contested campaign hoping to replace former MP Lee Richardson, who left to work for Alberta Premier Alison Redford.

Conservative officials say they're not going to release the numbers of Saturday's vote.

Crockatt is a former managing editor of the Calgary Herald and also worked as a senior newspaper executive with Southam Newspapers, and Canwest Global Communications.

For the past decade she had been a communications consultant and media commentator.

A date for a byelection in Calgary Centre has not been set.

Richardson, 64, announced in May he was resigning to become principal secretary for Redford. THE CANADIAN PRESS

'Business lunch'

Clarification

In regards to a story in Thursday's edition of Metro called "Calgary 'business lunch' experiment sheds light on alcohol impairment," the Calgary Police Service confirmed to the reporter that none of the participants had blown over .05 after two drinks during a recent public dosing experiment.

Metro has since learned, after consultation with one reporter involved, she did in fact blow over .05 after consuming two drinks in 30 minutes.

Metro regrets any confusion this may have caused.

Jackpine. Feds still have concerns over Shell oilsands project

Regulatory documents indicate federal scientists still have significant concerns over Shell's proposed Jackpine oilsands mine expansion, even as the project heads into public hearings.

Five years after Shell Canada first proposed the 100,000-barrel-a-day project, it has been finally scheduled to go before a joint federal-provincial environmental hearing Oct. 29.

In their final submissions to the Canadian Environmental Assessment Agency, several federal departments say they still have questions about Shell's plans. They include how growth in the industry has outpaced the company's assessment of cumulative effects; how changing flow in the Athabasca River will affect contaminant levels; and how well Shell is able to control effluent from artificial lakes that will be used to store tailings.

"Several matters will require further discussion to fully understand potential project (effects) and ensure suitable mitigation can be implemented," says an Aug. 2 letter from Environment Canada.

Shell's Aug. 13 response acknowledges the concerns.

"Shell is fully prepared to respond to any questions identified by the interveners at the hearing," says a letter signed by Donald Crowe, the company's regulatory manager.

Fashion over function: Cyclists snub helmets and lycra bike shorts

'Cycle Chic' movement.

It's not about wearing particular kinds of clothes; it's about choosing your style independently of your transportation

Who they are

- Ponto has observed in his PhD research that cyclists in Amsterdam tend to ride more slowly, "just the speed they need to go without breaking a sweat."

- In addition to her blog, Woo also operates a cycle-specific clothing company in Calgary called Riyoko Urban Bike-wear.

- Colville-Andersen was dubbed "the pope of urban cycling" by Montreal's La Presse newspaper.

ROBSON FLETCHER

robson.fletcher@metronews.ca

Despite Calgary's sprawling suburbs and dominant car culture, a growing number of city residents are taking the bicycle back as an everyday means of transportation — and they're doing it in their everyday clothes.

Eschewing the lycra shorts and hair-mussing helmets that have become de rigueur for other cyclists, these urban riders dress for their destination rather than their journey.

The movement has a name — "Cycle Chic" — coined by Mikael Colville-Andersen, a former Calgarian who now lives in Denmark, where he works as an urban-mobility expert with Copenhagenize Consulting.

"Cycle Chic is all about regular citizens going about their daily business by bicycle — whether it be in hipster-wear, flip-flops and jogging pants, killer heels or in suits — and you can see it all in Calgary," he said via email.

Kristi Woo, who co-founded the blogcalgarycyclechic.com, has observed an upswing in city residents adopting this approach, even in the past year.

"I think you see a lot more diversity of style going on," she said.

"Cycle Chic has been a push forward, definitely, for the urban cyclist."

Kensington-area resident Jason Ponto both lives the lifestyle and studies it.

He is currently working on a PhD in sociology comparing Calgary's cycling culture with that of Amsterdam, where he said decades of urban planning have made casual cycling more convenient and common.

Quoted

"I think, in a lot of ways, the Cycle Chic culture in Calgary is trying to mimic that ease-of-use in places like Amsterdam and Copenhagen."

Kensington-area resident and PhD student Jason Ponto

Pussy Riot. Two members flee Russia to escape same fate as bandmates

Two members of the punk band Pussy Riot have fled Russia to avoid prosecution for a protest against Vladimir Putin that sent three of their bandmates to prison, the group said Sunday.

Five members of the feminist group took part in a provocative performance inside Moscow's main cathedral in February to protest the Russian leader's rule and his cozy relationship with the Orthodox Church. The women wore their trademark garishly colored balaclavas, which made it difficult for police to identify them, and only three were arrested.

After a controversial trial that highlighted Putin's crackdown on dissent since he began a third presidential term in May, the three band

Togo. Women urged to go on sex strike to oust president

The female wing of a civil rights group is urging women in Togo to stage a week-long sex strike to demand the resignation of the country's president.

Women are being asked to start withholding sex from their husbands or partners as of Monday, said Isabelle Ameganvi, leader of the women's wing of the group Let's Save Togo.

She said the strike will put pressure on Togo's men to take action against President Faure Gnassingbe.

Ameganvi, a lawyer, told The Associated Press that her group is following the example of Liberia's women, who used a sex strike in 2003 to campaign for peace.

600 million sets of eyes were fixed on astronaut during 1969 moon landing

When man first harnessed fire, no one recorded it. When the Wright Brothers showed man could fly, only a handful of people witnessed it. But when Neil Armstrong took that first small step on the moon in July 1969, an entire globe watched in grainy black-and-white from a quarter million miles away.

Although more than half of the world's population wasn't alive then, it was an event that changed and expanded the globe.

His first words after the feat are etched in history books and the memories of the spellbound millions who heard them in a live broadcast.

"That's one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind," Armstrong said.

India's ruling party, opposition thick as thieves: Protesters

Corruption. Police fire tear gas, water cannons as angry mob breaks through barricades en route to PM's home in New Delhi

Indian police detained scores of anti-corruption activists who tried to march Sunday to the homes of top political leaders to protest a scandal over the government's sale of coal fields without competitive bidding.

Hundreds of activists lay down on the road outside the homes of Prime Minister Manmohan Singh and other leaders in central New Delhi as police held them back with security barricades. They later broke through police cordons at many places, and police responded by firing tear gas and water cannons.

Quoted

"Our protest today was to tell the country how Congress and the BJP are hand-in-glove in looting the country."

Arvind Kejriwal, protest leader

Officers dragged protesters to buses parked near the prime minister's house and took them to nearby police stations. Police also used bamboo batons to beat back protesters who had climbed over a barricade near the prime minister's office complex.

The protesters, members of India Against Corruption, said they would blockade the homes of leaders of both the ruling Congress party and the main opposition Bharatiya Janata Party because they blame both parties for India's endemic corruption.

Cystic fibrosis. Researchers grow lung cells in lab

Researchers have produced lung cells in the lab using stem cells grown from the skin of patients with cystic fibrosis — a tool they believe can be used to test drugs that might overcome the debilitating, life-shortening condition.

In a study published Sunday in Nature Biotechnology, researchers at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto describe how they produced what are known as induced pluripotent stem cells from skin taken from patients with cystic fibrosis.

Induced pluripotent stem cells, or iPS cells, are adult cells that have been genetically manipulated in the lab to act like embryonic stem cells. As such, they can give rise to heart, muscle, liver and virtually any other cell type in the body.

In this case, the researchers wanted to make lung cells because it is the lungs that are primarily affected by cystic fibrosis. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario. Young plane crash victims identified

Four young people who died in a plane crash Friday in southwestern Ontario have been identified.

Ontario Provincial Police say the plane's pilot was Marko Misic, 20, of Toronto and the three passengers were Mohammed Shah Nawaz Zia, 23, of Toronto, Wasay Rizwan, 27 of Toronto and Victoria Margaret Luk, 19, of Mississauga, Ont.

All four victims were pronounced dead at the scene.

The single-engine Cessna 172 had departed from the Waterloo Regional Airport at 6:10 p.m. Friday.

Police say it was supposed to fly to Toronto, then Niagara Falls, then back to Toronto.

But at some point during the flight, investigators say the four-seater plane encountered "unknown difficulties" and crashed into a cornfield in Mapleton, Ont.

Israeli Embassy attack. Cairo court convicts 76 Egyptians linked to protest

A Cairo court has convicted 76 Egyptians on charges linked to last year's attack by protesters on the Israeli Embassy.

Seventy-five of the defendants received suspended one-year sentences Sunday, while one defendant, tried in absentia, was given a five-year prison term. The court listed eight charges, including "an assault against diplomatic missions" and "sabotage."

In September, thousands of protesters tore down a security wall around a highrise building housing the Israeli Embassy in Cairo and then trashed its offices. The embassy's storming followed the killing of six Egyptian soldiers by Israeli troops who were pursuing Palestinian militants near the Egyptian border.

The attack prompted nearly the entire embassy staff to evacuate in the one

Drawdown. NATO closes 202 bases in Afghanistan

NATO has closed more than 200 bases in Afghanistan and transferred nearly 300 others to local forces, a concrete step toward its 2014 target of handing over security responsibility, NATO officers said Sunday.

All 202 closed facilities were small, ranging from isolated checkpoints to bases of a dozen to 300 soldiers, said Lt. Col. David Olson, a NATO forces spokesman.

Most of the closures have been along the country's main highways, spread across nearly every province,

Another 282 bases of the same size have been handed over to the Afghan government.

The closures are part of the large-scale drawdown over this year and next as international forces prepare to transfer security tasks to the Afghan government at the end of 2014.

Mohammed Sami, 22, said he sold vegetables and worked in a grocery store in a small town in northern Syria before persuading his father to invest in his dream: a barber shop.

He worked with a friend and their shop had two chairs, big mirrors, electric clippers and a TV set.

After the uprising started, he said they hung a revolutionary flag on the wall. When soldiers raided the village, Sami said they set his place on fire.

Soon after, Sami said he joined the rebels.

Bader Farouh, 17, said he got arrested soon after catching the revolutionary bug. The second time police caught him at a protest, he said they hung him naked on a wall for more beatings.

Afterward, he said his father took him to the head of a local rebel brigade and told him: "Take him and treat him like one of your sons."

Ahmed al-Saleh, 22, said he wanted to go to university after he graduated from high school but didn't have the money to pay for it or the grades to get the government to do so.

So, he said, he joined the police and stamped passports at an isolated border crossing with Turkey.

Before he joined the rebels, he said he supported it "in his heart" but kept quiet.

U.S. woman becomes pro-Palestinian symbol

Civil lawsuit. Couple looking for justice after their daughter was crushed by an Israeli tank back in 2003

Craig and Cynthia Corrie display a photo of their daughter at a news conference outside the Capitol in Washington in March 2003. LAWRENCE JACKSON/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

Almost a decade after their daughter was crushed to death by an Israeli army bulldozer as she tried to block its path in a Gaza Strip conflict zone, Rachel Corrie's parents are preparing for a judge's ruling in their high-profile civil lawsuit against the military.

They hope Tuesday's court decision will conclude a case that's turned their daughter into a rallying cry for pro-Palestinian activists, taken years of their life and drained their savings.

"We are here with a great deal of anticipation for Tuesday," said Corrie's mother, Cindy, 64, a homemaker and musician from Olympia, Washington. "We are hoping for some accountability here for what happened to Rachel."

Corrie, a pro-Palestinian activist, was 23 when she was killed in March 2003 while she and other activists sought to block an Israeli military bulldozer they believed was about to demolish Palestinian homes. The driver has said he didn't see Corrie, and the death was accidental.

The Israeli army had been undertaking systematic house demolitions in the densely populated border area, trying to halt shooting and mortar attacks against soldiers and Jewish settlers who used the route.

While several foreign activists were killed or wounded in confrontations with the Israeli military during the last decade, Corrie's case has taken on special meaning for Palestinian activists; she became a symbol of what they say is Israel's harsh repression of non-violent protest to occupation.

Act of God. Critics point out irony in Republican logic

The hotly anticipated Republican National Convention in Tampa, Fla., kicks off this week, though it's now at the mercy of a would-be hurricane bearing down to join forces with the tempest already inflicted upon Mitt Romney and the Republican party by an anti-abortion Missouri congressman.

The irony of a potential hurricane wreaking havoc on the convention hasn't been lost on many pundits, especially since several high-profile conservatives, including Republican congresswoman Michele Bachmann, have blamed liberal policies over the years for similar "acts of God."

"By their own logic, Republicans and their conservative allies should be concerned that Isaac is a form of divine retribution," Washington Post columnist Dana Milbank wrote last week.

Indeed, the recent remarks from U.S. Senate candidate Todd Akin about women's bodies shutting down and preventing pregnancy in cases of "legitimate rape" have already exposed dangerous fault lines in the party's fragile coalition of disparate factions.

"This is a classic bullhorn lock between the social conservatives of the party and the big business, economy-focused Republicans, the ones who are really worried about taxes and deregulation and other economic matters," says Doug Brinkley, a historical author and history professor at Rice University in Houston. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tropical storm expected to hit on 7th anniversary of Katrina

On the move. Keys residents nonchalant about Isaac's soaking, but Gulf Coast braced for potential hurricane Tropical Storm Isaac barely stirred Florida Keys residents from their fabled nonchalance Sunday, while the Gulf Coast braced for the possibility that the sprawling storm will strengthen into a dangerous hurricane by the time it makes landfall there.

Isaac was expected to cross the Keys by late afternoon, then turn northwest and strike as a Category 2 hurricane somewhere between the New Orleans area to the Florida Panhandle on Wednesday, the seventh anniversary of Hurricane Katrina.

The storm was predicted to pass west of Tampa, the site of the Republican National Convention, but it had already disrupted the schedule there because of the likelihood of heavy rain and strong winds.

Even before reaching hurricane strength, Isaac caused considerable inconvenience, with hundreds of flights cancelled at airports in Miami and Fort Lauderdale. There were scattered power outages from Key West to Fort Lauderdale affecting more than 6,000 customers, and flooding occurred in low-lying areas.

Wind gusts of 60 m.p.h. were reported as far north as Pompano Beach, north of Fort Lauderdale. But while officials urged residents in southeast Florida to stay home, that recommendation was ignored by surfers and joggers on Miami Beach and shoppers at area malls.

$1B. Apple verdict over Samsung may hurt competitors: Analysts

It was the $1-billion question: What does Apple's victory in an epic patent dispute over Samsung mean for the U.S. smartphone industry?

Many analysts said the decision could spell danger for competitors who, like Samsung, use Google's Android operating system to power their cellphones.

A loss to the Android-based market would represent a big hit for Google as well.

"I am sure this is going to put a damper on Android's growth," New York-based ISI Group analyst Brian Marshall said. "It hurts the franchise."

The Silicon Valley jury found that some of Samsung's products illegally copied features and designs exclusive to Apple's iPhone and iPad.

The verdict was narrowly tailored to only Samsung, which sold more than 22 million smartphones and tablets that Apple claimed used its technology.

But most other Apple competitors have used the Android system to produce similar technology, which could limit the features offered on all non-Apple phones, analysts said.

"The other makers are now scrambling" to find alternatives, said Rob Enderle, a leading technology analyst based in San Jose.

Seo Won-seok, a Seoul-based analyst at Korea Investment, said that the popular functions the jury said Samsung stole from Apple will be hard to replicate.

Appeal planned

Samsung has vowed to appeal the verdict all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court.

- The company argues that Apple's patents for such "obvious" things as its products' rounded rectangle shape were wrongly granted.
- A Sept. 20 hearing is scheduled.

The companies could choose to pay Apple licensing fees for access to the technology or develop smarter technology to create similar features that don't violate the patent — at a cost likely to be passed onto consumers.

Apple lawyers are planning to ask that the two dozen Samsung devices found to have infringed its patents be barred from the U.S. market. Most of those devices are "legacy" products with almost nonexistent new sales in the U.S. Apple lawyers will also ask that the judge triple the damage award to $3 billion since the jury found Samsung "wilfully" copied Apple's patents.

The dispute centres on Apple's dissatisfaction with Google's entry into the phone market when the search company released its Android operating system and announced any company could use it free of cost. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Murdoch making a point by running Harry photos?

'Mooning the Establishment.' Reports suggest scandal-plagued mogul may be pushing back on press freedom by challenging royals

By letting his top-selling U.K. tabloid run photos of a naked Prince Harry cavorting in a Las Vegas hotel room, some say media mogul Rupert Murdoch was warning Britain's establishment that he could still shake things up.

British officialdom has largely turned its back on Murdoch because of the phone-hacking scandal that has badly tainted his media empire over the past year.

So even though Murdoch's The Sun newspaper framed its decision to publish the nude pictures as a defence of press freedom, some observers saw the move as a feisty message from the tycoon.

"Not only was The Sun showing Harry's bottom, Murdoch was mooning the Establishment," said journalist Jane Merrick, whose article in The Independent on Sunday alleged that Murdoch personally ordered the paper to run the photos in a phone call with Tom Mockridge, the chief of his British newspaper unit, News International.

Murdoch, once assiduously courted by lawmakers across the British political spectrum, has seen his clout wither after his company was exposed as having hacked into the phones of

"He may be on the public payroll one way or another, but the public loves him."

News International head Rupert Murdoch, on royal rogue Prince Harry hundreds of people to score scoops.

Allegations of bribery, corruption, computer hacking, and obstruction of justice are being investigated, and the scandal has prompted a judge-led media-ethics inquiry that could propose sweeping changes to how Britain's press is policed — potentially subjecting newspapers to government regulation.

If The Sun was cowed, it didn't show it Friday, when it published the pictures of Harry along with a lengthy public-interest justification claiming that the "photos have potential implications for the Prince's image representing Britain around the world."

News International has declined to comment on what role, if any, the 81-year-old Murdoch played in the decision to run the photos, but the mogul's Twitter posts suggested that, at the very least, he'd been following the issue closely.

In a message to a user who congratulated him on The Sun's challenge to the royal family, Murdoch said he "needed to demonstrate (that there is) no such thing as free press in UK."

"Internet makes mockery of these issues," he said, adding that Britain could use some First Amendment-style legislation.

But the mogul also extended an olive branch to the royals, telling his followers to give the prince "a break."

"He may be on the public payroll one way or another, but the public loves him," Murdoch wrote.

Most Bisphenol A ending up in landfill or destroyed: Study

Most of the toxic Bisphenol A contained in everyday products is either destroyed or winds up in landfills, says a new study for Environment Canada.

The finding helps to allay concerns that BPA persists for long periods in the environment — but critics say the study should not stall efforts to eliminate the chemical altogether.

Since April, Environment Canada has required industries to develop plans to reduce the amount of BPA released into the environment. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Furniture retailers eye condo-dwellers

Census figures for 2011 show multi-unit dwellings — a category that includes condominiums — make up roughly half of all new housing stock, a category traditionally led by detached homes.

This condo boom, fuelled by lifestyle changes and efforts to curb urban sprawl, is in turn revolutionizing the furniture-retail business.

As cities become denser, there's a growing demand for compact, multi-use furniture, says Elaine Cecconi, co-owner of interior design consultant firm Cecconi Simone. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Janice Paskey
calgary@metronews.ca

He didn't say "Call me, maybe."
Or at all.
But two years after glancing at his passport, I messaged him.
Thomas Yu.
My family was at the Calgary airport, having been bumped from our flight. Summer vacation crumpled...

The agent was mean. Despite having tickets that said CON-FIRMED, getting bumped was our fault, the agent said. Why? We were travelling on a long weekend, we hadn't paid for seat assignment online, two tickets were on Aeroplan.

"We're going to bump hundreds of people today and the government gives us every legal right to do it," he snapped.

We slumped back tearfully, and waited. Miraculously, four people decided to take the paltry $100 and wait eight hours for the next flight.

So my family got seats, all separate.

A young man approached: "I think my seat is near your children. Take mine."

"I'm beside the bathroom," I cautioned.

"I'm being flown to Nice,
France, to play piano, and I'm in a really good mood."

I glanced at his passport:
Thomas Yu.

This summer, I looked him up at thomasyu.ca because I read airlines were pushed to recognize passenger rights. The Air Transportation Agency upheld a complaint by mathematician Gabor Lukacs challenging overbooking practices of Air

Canada, WestJet and Air Transat. The airlines had the summer to respond and will post new rules to websites shortly.

The ATA says they have to refund your fare or get you to your destination with the first available carrier. If you decide not to fly, they have to get you home and give you a full refund. The three airlines have to reimburse lost luggage more fully.

As for Calgarian Thomas Yu? I asked why he helped us out.
He was philosophical, he wrote, after a piano practice, and credits
"loving Asian parents" in Saskatchewan. He says he tries to help underprivileged patients with dental care and usually donates back money from piano concerts.

"It's important to give back in little ways and not expect things in return. We need to stop living like the world owes us something."

In the end, our government still gives airlines every right to overbook, but at least they have to treat passengers better as they strive for profits.

That's giving back, too.

Cookbook stakes out vampire eats

True Blood fans can soon concoct their own blood-red beet bisque, crimson sweet tea and other Cajun delicacies inspired by the hit HBO vampire drama and compiled in a new cookbook.

True Blood is filmed partly in Louisiana and is set in the fictional Louisiana town of Bon Temps. The state's cuisine is often referenced in the series, where vampires and mortals mingle over bowls of okra gumbo, jambalaya, and red beans and rice.

The cookbook, True
Blood: Eats, Drinks, and Bites from Bon Temps, was compiled by Cajun chef Marcelle Bienvenu and is being released in bookstores on Wednesday, shortly after Sunday's broadcast of the show's fifth-season finale.

"I'm going to be honest with you: I had never seen the show before they asked me to do this cookbook," said Bienvenu, a chef from the Cajun town of St. Martin-ville, La., who lived in New Orleans for several years and now teaches culinary arts at Nicholls State University in Thibodaux, La.

"I sat down and watched it with my notebook, and I was amazed how much food was mentioned in the series," she said. "It was fun making the recipes come to life. I think people are still mystified by south Louisiana food.
There's still such a mystique about the food and culture
here." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The odd (celebrity) couple

The engagement of Avril Lavigne and Chad Kroeger has shocked Sk8er Bois and wannabe rockstars alike. This is how they remind us of some other strange star couplings.

MICHELLE CASTILLO
Metro World News

Congratulations are in order for Canada's most famous couple that no one knew existed, Avril Lavigne and Chad Kroeger. Lavigne annoyed millions (all the way to the platinum-tinged bank) with her "punk" records and pop singles. Kroeger has drawn much criticism for his lead singer role in Nickelback — so much so that even he's joined in and jokingly lashed back at the hatred through tongue-in-cheek videos on Funny or Die and quips on Twitter.

The two surprised fans and enemies alike by getting engaged after six months of discretely dating while they were co-writing a song for Lavigne's fifth studio album. But they're not the most shocking couple out there. Here's a couple more pairings that had us stunned.

Ben Affleck and Jennifer Lopez

He was raised in Boston. She grew up the Bronx. Somehow, these two managed to get together for what we are quite sure was a meaningful, not-long-lasting relationship. And, um, Gigli.

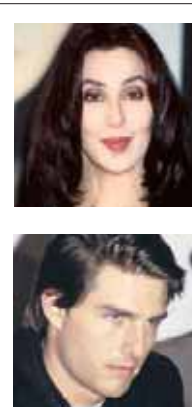

Woody Allen and Soon-Yi Previn

Though legally he wasn't her stepfather, Allen's relationship with Previn's adoptive mother, Mia Farrow, made the whole situation icky. It must be true love though: They've been together since 1992 and have two adopted daughters.

Lisa Marie Presley and Nicolas Cage

Gossip mills say that one of the main reasons Cage was attracted to the Presley daughter was because of his obsession with the King, which we're assuming would make for really awkward first date conversation.

Tom Cruise and Cher

Believe it or not, these two were together for a few months in the 1980s. Then again, it was the 1980s. A lot of things that shock us today weren't so surprising back then.

Jamie Travis with Ari Graynor. HANDOUT

"When I read the script it was clear to me that the success of the film would be dependent on its tone," says Jamie Travis of his new comedy For a Good Time, Call... which tells the story of two roommates (Ari Graynor and co-writer Lauren Miller) who start running a phone sex line out of their New York City apartment.

"What we had to do was find the right spot between being sweet and being crass."

Not the easiest challenge, considering that this was the Toronto-based director's feature debut after a series of acclaimed shorts and some eye-catching music videos. Travis also knew that the elaborate, artificial style of his short films wouldn't work for a commercial comedy and adjusted accordingly.

cordingly.

"I knew that if I plunked my style down into this film it would be a mistake," he says.

"The movie was never going to be about clever art direction or placing people humorously around the frame. It was going to work based on the characters. The audience needs to love these girls and root for them to be friends."

Travis definitely loved his leads: he spent some time in LA living with Miller and her husband, Seth Rogen, and he compares Graynor to such icons of '80s comedy as Goldie Hawn and Bette Midler.

"I grew up watching movies about women, about funny women," he explains.

In For a Good Time, Call..., Ari Graynor plays one half of an odd-couple roommate pair (with co-writer Lauren Anne Miller as the more conservative half) who end up best friends and co-owners of a successful phone sex operation. The film gave Graynor — who reminds viewers of a young Bette Midler — plenty of opportunities to show off her comedy chops.

This may sound weird, but this movie really reminded me of Beaches.

Oh my God, it's so funny. We have a joke that if the movie does well, we want to do a Funny or Die video with Barbara Hershey and Bette Midler called Cum to the Beaches. I feel like they would do it. I'm starting a Twitter campaign to get Bette to come to our premiere. But yeah, it's basically the same movie, at the end of the day. From now on, people are like, "For a Good Time, Call...? The remake of Beaches, you mean?" (laughs).

It seems in today's Hollywood it's harder to get those kinds of female-fronted comedies made.

There was a dynamic of strength and vulnerability in all those women that I just loved so much — and a freedom in their performances that I just think was so special. Certainly that kind of talent is still around, there just hasn't been the forum to let it loose in the same way. I don't know why that got lost. It's confusing, but it's nice to feel like maybe it's coming back. I feel like there's this really exciting moment right now — specifically with women — of taking charge of their careers, of taking charge of content. There are all these women that are making it happen for themselves. Some people might say it's unrealistic to get (For a Good Time, Call...) made, to get it made in 16 days, to find financing, to get into Sundance, but here we are and it's been such a complete success story. You never know, and you just have to push through.

I don't know how much research you did, but it seems surprising that phone sex lines still exist.

Phone sex absolutely still exists. I think the truth is, even with the Internet there's a different kind of anonymity with phone sex than with Web cams and all that stuff — God knows who can record what on those things. And, I think more to the point, people like a little intimacy. We're in this culture of porn but people, I believe, still want intimacy, and I think some people are afraid of it in real life or don't know how to access it in real life.

Katy Perry has joined the surprisingly long list of hot, talented women to be dumped by John Mayer.

After two months, Mayer — who has also dated Jennifer Aniston, Jessica Simpson and Taylor Swift — called things off with the singer late last week, according to RadarOnline. Unlike the rest of us, Perry apparently thought Mayer had grown up since his days of bragging about his A-list sex life in Playboy.

"Katy fell hook, line and sinker for John, so when he broke it off she was ultimately surprised and incredibly embarrassed," a source tells the site.

"She's ashamed that she got played. It was the classic ladies man move — he added another notch on his bedpost. He charmed Katy, got what he wanted and moved on."

Parents' back to school 101: Letting them go

Parenting. Don't let your nerves take over as your little ones board that school bus

MEREDITH ENGEL

Metro World News in New York City

Pop quiz: Who's more nervous about starting school this year, you or your child?

If it's you, "it's a very normal response to have," says Matthew Stevenson, a child and family therapist in Philadelphia.

We asked him how parents can send their little ones off to school without letting their nerves take over.

Why does this anxiety happen?

It usually happens the first couple of times that a parent leaves their child alone, even for a couple hours. It's a natural thing to be worried about the person that you brought into the world, that you're responsible for, if you're not there when you are there typically. Particularly the stay-at-home parents, for them to be with this person 24/7 for five years and then to have them go off alone, that can cause a lot of stress. And it's a very normal thing to experience that stress. They're worried about their kid because they know they can keep their child safe. They've been doing it for five years, and now they're giving that responsibility to somebody else. It's hard to let go of that control. Where it can potentially become a problem is if that stress is being picked up by Acknowledging that you're nervous about your child heading off to school is the first step to feeling better. ISTOCK the child.

How can parents feel better?

Acknowledge it. The parent needs to realize that this is something they're concerned about — that's step one. Once they're able to acknowledge that, understand that it's a pretty normal anxiety to have. Step two is that it's important for parents to realize that they need to let their child go. That's part of the growth of their child, to have that independence and be able to function and do well without having the parent present all the time. Part of being a good parent is having your child thrive when you're not around. Then once you are able to let your child go to school, it's important to keep yourself occupied during those times. Have activities, do errands that are a lot easier to do without a child. Join classes, go to the gym — anything that would distract you so before you know it, it's time to pick up your little one.

When is this a problem that needs some extra help?

If the parent is going to school to watch their kid at recess, that would be not healthy. I think calling the school multiple times during the day to make sure that their child is OK, that would not be healthy. Showing that you're so upset, and your child picks up on that and then doesn't want to go to school, that's where it becomes a big issue. If you're able to hide your anxiety from your child, and they still enjoy going to school, it's not as much of a problem. But if it's affecting the entire family, then at that point it's probably good to seek help from a therapist.

Turn tonight's dinner into tomorrow's unique lunch

The best dinners are those that not only are delicious in their own right, but that also leave leftovers that can be reworked into lunch the next day.

This recipe for grilled hoisin pork tenderloin is perfect. The dinner itself is simple: just toss the marinated tenderloin on the grill along with a few vegetables and it's good to go.

The next day, turn the leftover pork into barbecue pulled pork by pulling it apart and mixing it with barbecue sauce. It can be eaten on a bun or in a wrap. It also can be served

Ingredients

- 9.4-oz jar hoisin sauce
- 1 cup red wine
- 1/4 cup soy sauce
- 4 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 tsp hot sauce
- 2-lbs pork tenderloins
- 5 large yellow onions
- 2 tbsp olive oil
- Kosher salt and ground black pepper
- 1 tbsp whole cumin seeds

warm or cold.

1. In large zip-close plastic bag, combine hoisin, wine, soy sauce, garlic and hot sauce. Seal bag and gently shake to mix well. Add pork tenderloin — then close bag and gently turn to ensure the meat is well coated. Refrigerate for at least two hours and up to 24 hours.

2. Trim ends from onions, then peel off outer layer of skin.

Place onions in a second large zip-close plastic bag; add olive oil, a bit of salt and pepper, and cumin seeds. Seal bag, gently shake to coat evenly. Refrigerate until ready to grill meat.

3. When ready to cook, heat one side of the grill to medium-high, the other side to low.

4. Using oil-soaked paper towel held with tongs, oil the grill grates. Add whole onions to cooler side of grill. Grill, covered, for 5 minutes. Turn onions, then add pork to cooler side of grill. Grill pork for 6 minutes per side. Remove onions when very tender and meat when it is seared on outside and reaches 145 F at centre.

5. Transfer pork and onions to a platter and let the meat rest for 5 minutes. Thinly slice the pork and serve with an onion.

Steam these tasty pork dumplings to perfection

You may never have bought wontons as a raw ingredient, but if you've ever had fried egg rolls or steamed dumplings in your Asian take-out, you've eaten them.

Because wonton skins essentially are vehicles for containing other ingredients, their strength is their versatility. They can be filled with just about anything, from ground or chopped meat and vegetables, to cheese.

You'll find wontons in virtually every grocer, usually in the produce section next to the tofu and other Asian ingredients.

They are available in a variety of sizes, though three-inch squares tend to be the most versatile.

1. In a large bowl, whisk together the egg, hoisin, soy sauce, sesame oil and hot sauce. Add the pork, carrots, scallions, cilantro and water chestnuts, then mix well.

2. One at a time, place one tablespoon of the pork mixture in the centre of each wonton. Dunk your fingers in water, then use them to wet the edges of the wrapper. Gather the edges of the wrapper over the filling, pinching them together to form a small purse. Repeat with the remaining filling and wrappers.

3. In a large sauté pan, bring about one inch of water to a boil. Set a bamboo or other steamer basket over the water, then lightly coat it with cooking spray.

4. Working in batches if necessary, arrange the dumplings in the steamer (they should not touch), then cover and steam for 15 minutes.

Calm before the dorm: A parent's prep guide

Master of the move.

What parents need to know about settling your student into their new home

TIFFANY KANG
life@metronews.ca

After a last-minute trip to Bed Bath & Beyond for the crucial shower caddy and extra-long bed sheets, your college freshman should be good to go. But, let's face it — are you, the parent, equally prepared?

This bittersweet battle starts well before arriving home to your child's empty bedroom.

It begins, in fact, on move-in day — the pinnacle of your parenting career up until this point.

Here's what experts have to say about making the right moves for move-in.

Know less is more, especially at first

"Initially, bring 100 per cent of what's needed, but not 100 per cent of what's wanted," says Marc Wais, NYU's vice president for student affairs. "Be Spartan and minimalist. Save the rest for shipping afterwards. It'll prevent heart attacks in 100 degree weather." This is especially important for city navigation, where "urban campuses are normally vertical, rather than sprawled for easy movement," he notes.

Keep an eye on the clock

"There will be some point

With a little planning, the big move can be a fun day. ISTOCK in time when the university wants you to say goodbye," Wais cautions. "Don't hang around — it often embarrasses students and prevents them from forging their own beginnings." Colleges plan orientations carefully, "so be thoughtful by following the schedule as programmed."

Expect peace, not pandemonium

Marie Carr, author of The Prepared Parent's Operational Manual: Sending Your Child to College, is a veteran move-in mom and reminds us that no one is as prepared as the college's staff. "You'll meet panels of experienced parents as well as teams of resident advisers, students and staff more than willing to guide you," she says. "There may even be city police directing traffic, and there will certainly be adequate free parking. Universities go out of their way for you."

Space notes

"Students should communicate clearly with roommates to find out who's bringing what," says Wais. "You don't want two of anything if you only need one, especially in a small room." Meanwhile, save space by keeping it simple in the gadget department. "Computers can be DVD players. Cell phones can act as alarm clocks," notes Carr. "Simplify for the situation."

Smile for the photograph

After a day of waiting for elevators and wrestling with packing tape, you probably won't be feeling photogenic. But before you leave, remember to snap pictures of that first day — the cap-and-gown portrait will be here before you know it.

Start fresh with frosh.
Make sure not to waste that first week of freedom

A new life of learning and laughter awaits in college. ISTOCK

For new students across the country, frosh week is an orientation to university or college life and an introduction to ideas that could potentially shape your view of the world. To make your first week on campus a memorable one, follow these simple tips:

Visit the campus

No one has ever gotten acquainted with their classes, campus, or colleagues by staying in bed. Tempting as it may be to sleep in and stretch summer by another precious week, get up and physically go to school — whether or not you have a class. Even just hanging around campus with a newspaper and a coffee will give you an idea of who your classmates are and where the hot spots are located.

Try something new

During the first few weeks of the school year, most student clubs, groups, and teams set up booths to recruit new members. You may find groups for environmental activism, ultimate frisbee, or identifying with your cultural roots. Exploring student clubs and getting involved in extra-curricular activities is a great way to meet new

Remember the big picture

Keep things in perspective and remember how fortunate you are to have the opportunity to gain a higher education. Youth in developing countries may have to drop out of school at an early age to support their families. Add depth and meaning to frosh week by getting involved with campus fundraisers. A warrior at work

Survivor's success.

Glori Meldrum is a businesswoman determined to give something back

THE IN-CREDIBILITY FACTOR
Teresa Kruze
tk@metronews.ca

"I think I want to start my own company".

Glori Meldrum sat across the dinner table from her husband and weighed her options.

Having just moved from New Brunswick to Edmonton, the bachelor of commerce grad was working as a promotions director at a radio station and was making $27,000 a year.

They looked at each other and knew the answer was clear.

"Let's do it".

Today, Glori owns two companies, g (squared) and trafik interactive and is a proud wife and mother of three children including a five-year-old boy she adopted from Ethiopia.

Meldrum is also giving back. As a survivor of child abuse she is raising money to build Little Warriors Be Brave Ranch.

"In most major markets there are two to three facilities for sex offenders but not for kids.

"My dream is to build a spiritual oasis where a neglected survivor can be given the tools they need to heal their body and spirit and mind.

"It's not about money. It's about having a loving, balanced, happy life and being of service to others. It's that simple."

Businesswoman, humanitarian and survivor, Glori Meldrum / PROVIDED

Glori's guide to life

Keys to success:

- Have vision and execute.
- Be true to yourself, employees and clients. Then the right team and clients will be built around you.
- Always act from a place of love. Even if I have to let an employee or client go, I do it from a point of authenticity and love.
- People are your most valuable asset. Hire people that reflect your own values to create a good team.
- Remember that fear only exists in your mind. If I'm scared of something I force myself and get in and get it done. I just do it.

Breezing into the books. Don't assume your child isn't excited to embark on their scholastic life

LINDA
lcl@metronews.ca

The first day at school isn't what it used to be. These days, by the time most children start formal education they're relatively comfortable with separation from the home and parent, says Jayne Singer, Ph.D., the clinical director of the Child and Parent Program at Boston Children's Hospital.

"Children who have had high-quality day care or preschool make a better transition to school both emotionally and socially," she says.

Still, even leaving a private play-based preschool to go to a public school is a big transition, and there's a lot parents can do to ease a child's stress with any environmental change. When They're going to have to do their homework, and so should you!

it comes to easing anxiety, familiarity breeds comfort.

"Give the child guidance; show them pictures of their new classroom or school. A lot of schools have the good sense to hold open houses or have a welcome visit. Visit the school, visit the playground. Show them the classroom and where they will play. The sense of familarity will ease anxiety."

"Also," adds Singer, "younger children do well with concrete reminders about the passage of time. Get a calendar and mark off the days until school starts. Turn it into a craft project. Say, make a flower and add a petal for each day."

One thing parents should watch for is transferring their anxiety. "Parents shouldn't assume a child is anxious or feels separation. Don't ask, 'Are you scared?' Let the child bring it up and if they do, say, 'Of course you are. I feel nervous when I do something new.'"

Parents should also get ready in advance

"Have a conversation with personnel at the school so you are prepared for the environment," says Singer. "The more parents know about the school, the more authentic they are in offering guidance to the child. Tell your child they will have a chance to play, they will have a place to draw and paint. Give them concrete examples of what is there. Give them a vision of the classroom as a kind and supportive place."

Bautista makes short-lived return to Jays lineup

Blue Jays slugger Jose Bautista, who re-aggravated his left wrist sprain on Saturday, travelled to Cleveland on Sunday to visit noted hand specialist, Dr. Thomas Graham.

In just his second game back since he suffered the injury on July 16 in New York, Bautista left Saturday's game after just one at-bat citing new discomfort in the wrist. He was put back on the 15-day disabled list following the game.

Rugby's Hickling gets Canadian flag-bearing duty

A ferocious player on the court and an unassuming man off of it, Garrett Hickling will carry the Maple Leaf into Wednesday's opening ceremonies of the 2012 Paralympic Games.

Hickling will represent Canada in Paralympic wheelchair rugby for the fifth time in his career. The 41-year-old from Kelowna, B.C., was named the Canadian team's flagbearer Sunday.

"This makes me want to hold my head up high and smile hard," Hickling said.

"I didn't even know what I (was) doing when I (was) 15. So it's pretty amazing to see her play this good (on) the best stage."

World No. 1 Yani Tseng on Lydia Ko's win

Lydia Ko is not going to the bank to cash a champion's cheque, but she still gets what many pro golfers do not yet have.

Recognition in the World Golf Hall of Fame.

The 15-year-old amateur made her mark in history Sunday as she became the youngest ever winner of an LPGA event by capturing the Canadian Women's Open title with a 5-under 67.

Since Ko is still an amateur, she could not collect the top prize of $300,000. But her glove will be displayed in the World Golf Hall of Fame.

"To have something that's mine to be up there, it's amazing, and it doesn't come down or anything," she said. "So it will always remain there, and it'll be a good memory. It's been an awesome week."

The New Zealander finished with a 13-under 275 total to beat Inbee Park of South Korea by three strokes. But the cash went to Park, who made the score closer by chipping in for birdie from an estimated 40 yards on the final hole.

"The pressure she was handling is really amazing," said Park. "I'm really happy for her. It's great for her career — and I think I was just lucky to get the winner's cheque today."

Ko became just the fifth amateur to win an LPGA tournament and first since JoAnne Carner of the U.S. back in 1969.

Even though Ko is an amateur, LPGA veterans kept with tradition for first-time tour winners and doused her with water. However, her first win in an LPGA was not as meaningful as the U.S. Amateur crown she won earlier this year.

"I didn't cry after this one," said Ko, but (after) that one I did cry," she said. "Yeah, to me, U.S. Amateur is a big event, and obviously this is a huge event as well. But still, as an amateur winning one of the biggest amateur events, I feel like it was a better win — even though this one was awesome."

Despite the big pro win, the Grade 11 student said she still plans to remain as an amateur and go to college in the U.S.

U.S. Open next stop on Grand Slam grind

Champion at Wimbledon in both singles and doubles. Winner again at the All England Club in both events, four weeks later at the Olympics.

Nobody would blame Serena Williams if she felt worn down by this year's jam-packed tennis calendar. She doesn't see it that way, though — even with the grind of the U.S. Open looming in New York.

"I look forward to this," Williams said. "It's almost like a launching pad for what I want to do for the rest of the hard-court season."

In a way, yes, Monday's start of the year's last Grand Maria Sharapova, who pulled out of her final two tune-up tournaments before the U.S. Open.

Slam marks a new beginning — the kickoff of a six-month stretch on the hard courts ends with the 2013 Australian Open.

Call it mental gymnastics, a creative way of looking at things or whatever else might apply. What can't be denied is that in an Olympic year, the U.S. Open — considered the toughest test in tennis under normal circumstances — is essentially the season's fifth major.

"A lot of them," Jim Courier said, "are running on fumes."

Indeed, many top players have had to double down on their fitness and find creative ways of organizing their schedules.

Defending champion Novak Djokovic barely took any time off following his fourth-place finish at the Olympics. He travelled to Toronto for a tuneup and won the tournament.

Then, he flew to Cincinnati, played six more matches but lost to Roger Federer in the final that included a 6-0 whitewashing in the first set.

"Mentally, I wasn't there, wasn't fresh," Djokovic said. "It had been a very busy time starting at the Olympic Games, and maybe that caught up with me at the end."

The Second-seeded Djokovic won the Australian Open. Rafael Nadal won the French

Open. Top-seeded Federer won Wimbledon. Just for good measure, third-seeded Andy Murray won the Olympics, meaning the U.S. Open could essentially determine the player of the year in men's tennis.

Though the women's game has been more in flux than the men's of late — seven different winners over the past seven Grand Slams — the math is essentially the same in 2012: Three of the top four women — No. 1 Victoria Azarenka, No. 3 Maria Sharapova and No. 4 Williams — have major titles this year and all need this one to break the tie.

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20
Partnerships and affairs of the heart may be a bit stormy as the week begins. Try not to overreact because it is only a passing phase and will pass a lot quicker if you stay calm, whatever the provocation.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21
Social activities are unlikely to appeal to you today, but matters related to your health and fitness will. Head for the gym or the pool and not only will you feel better physically but mentally and emotionally too.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21
You seem much more passionate than usual, and that's good, but watch out you don't go over the top in some way. Not everyone shares your interests and some people won't take kindly to you trying to "convert" them.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23
Your instincts about people are rarely off target but with mind planet Mercury under pressure at the moment you could get the wrong end of the stick. Don't jump to conclusions.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23
You may be feeling ultra dynamic but not everyone out there shares your get up and go attitude to life. If there is something you want doing over the next 24 hours you will most likely have to do it yourself.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
Stop worrying about money and relationship issues and just go out and have fun. Sometimes you can allow trivial things to get on top of you and that's not good, especially right at the start of the week.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
The more you try to persuade friends and colleagues to get involved in your latest scheme the more they back away. Why is that? It could be because they are still hurting from how your last scheme worked out.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
If you get the chance to travel and meet new people over the next few days – and you will – you must seize it with both hands. Don't let those at home hold you back – their reasons are largely selfish.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
Is there a grand design? Does your existence have meaning? Yes and yes again are the answers to those questions and even if you did not believe it before you will believe it today. There is no such thing as "coincidence".

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Yes, of course, you should respect people in positions of power but that does not mean you have to do everything they say. Sometimes a bit of rebellion is a healthy thing – it keeps everyone on their toes.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Don't be afraid to ask people you live and work with what they think about what you are doing. Some of what they say may be critical but most of the feedback will be positive. Their input is essential.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20
You seem to believe that everyone but you is in on some kind of secret. It may be true but more likely you are being a bit paranoid. Stop worrying about what other people know – it's what you know that matters. SALLY BROMPTON
